

You're running down the street toward the bus stop with a neighbor kid. The bus is already there and looks like it might pull away at any moment. Your neighbor drops her backpack and a bunch of her stuff spills out. What do you do in that situation?

Your brother got into big trouble because your parents think he broke the downstairs TV and tried to hide it. It was actually you, but no one will know it if you don't say anything. What do you do in that situation?

Your little brother sneaks into your room and takes your favorite video game without asking. What do you do in that situation?

While playing soccer, a kid on your team pushes you out of the way in order to score a goal. Afterwards, he comes over to you to apologize. You're still pretty angry. What do you do in that situation?

Your mom says that you need to finish cleaning your room before you can go outside to play with your friends. You notice that there's room enough under your bed to just shove everything. What do you do in that situation?

Your dad says that you need to go to bed because you were up too late the night before. After he turns the lights out, you remember you have a flashlight. You really want to keep reading your book. What do you do in that situation?

You've been waiting in the lunch line for what seems like forever when a kid in your class cuts in front of you. What do you do in that situation?

At the school lunch table, some of your friends start saying mean things about another kid in your class. What do you do in that situation?